Steve Coogan and Dame Harriet Walter recreate the explosive TV interview that led to Margaret Thatcher's downfall

Brian Walden
and Margaret
Thatcher in 1977

Brian Walden
Steve Coogan

The former Member of Parliament is now one of TV's biggest names after becoming disillusioned with the Labour Party.

NEW DRAMA

Brian and Maggie

Wednesday & Thursday, 9pm, C4
(box set, Channel 4)

On Sunday 29 October 1989, millions of TV viewers tuned in to watch journalist and broadcaster Brian Walden sit down with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher for an interview that would change the course of British politics.

Coming just three days after the resignation of her Chancellor, Nigel Lawson, the television event proved to be the beginning of the end for the Conservative leader, who was forced from Downing Street little more than a year later.

The interview also proved the final act in Thatcher and Walden's friendship, which had blossomed during a host of on-screen discussions over the previous decade. However, when the

MAKING MAGGIE

Dame Harriet Walter has portrayed several real-life characters in her glittering TV career, including Virginia Woolf, Princess Margaret and Clementine Churchill. But she admits that playing Margaret Thatcher was a very different challenge.

'I don't look anything like Maggie Thatcher. I'm the first brown-eyed, dark-haired person who's taken on the role, so I asked for a lot of help with the make-up, hair and voice lessons,' she says. 'I had to travel a great distance to reach her – but with James Graham's brilliant script, Stephen Frears to guide me and Steve Coogan to accompany me, I had the dream team to help me achieve it.'

interviewer pressed his guest over Lawson's resignation, Thatcher floundered and protested that he was talking 'nonsense' and being 'domineering'. Afterwards, the pair would never speak again.

The story of that pivotal moment,

Suited up as the Iron Lady

and how it came about, is now being told in a two-part C4 drama, Brian and Maggie, starring Succession's Dame Harriet Walter as Britain's first female Prime Minister and I'm Alan Partridge's Steve Coogan as Labour MP-turned-ITV broadcaster Walden.

'The drama was written as a two-hander about the sparring and dance that Brian and Margaret do around each other,' says Coogan, 59. 'The story is a fascinating one. It's about a political love story of sorts between a disillusioned Labour politician and a radical Tory Prime Minister. The two of them were outsiders and that's what attracted them to each other, above and beyond their political views.'

POLITICAL PAIR

Coogan started developing the project after a meeting with former BBC political editor and television producer Rob Burley, who wrote a book about the momentous interview.

'I had watched Walden's Sunday interviews when I was young, so I knew all about him,' explains Coogan. 'But I went back and looked at all the interviews he did with Thatcher again, to follow the arc of their political relationship. You see her develop as a politician and him develop as an interrogator, which was very interesting.'

Growing up with a keen interest in politics also meant Coogan had some strong opinions about the formidable figure, who was dubbed the 'Iron Lady', although he was determined not to let his personal beliefs cloud the project.

'Thatcher was a very divisive figure and I had a lot of antipathy towards her when she was Prime Minister,' explains Coogan. 'But the fact she was an outsider makes her a fascinating figure to me. Now I look at her through a slightly different lens, as someone who was looking to make radical change. She knew her stuff and subjected herself to forensic analysis with Walden on a regular basis, in a way that politicians don't do any more.'

After recruiting BAFTA-winning Sherwood creator James Graham to adapt Burley's work and signing up The Queen's Stephen Frears to direct the series, Coogan's final task was persuading Harriet Walter to play the PM.

DREAM CASTING

'I was very surprised when I was asked,' reveals Walter, 74. 'I'd always switched off my TV whenever she came on during the 1980s, and I couldn't be objective about her. However, during filming I kept seeing things from her point of view, as a woman surrounded by men, and that coloured my way into her. The rigidity of Thatcher's public persona was all about trying to prove to the boys that she could be as tough as them.'

CHANNELING THATCHER

A host of stars have previously worn the ex-Prime Minister's famous blue power suits, from Meryl Streep in the Oscar-winning movie The Iron Lady to Gillian Anderson in Netflix's The Crown. But Walter was determined to put her own stamp on the role by looking at Thatcher's body language.

'Loads of people have played her over the years, but I decided I wasn't going to try to compete with them,' she explains. 'Instead of impersonating her I wanted to look at why she would put her finger out like that at that particular point? What did that tell me about her? What did it tell me about what she wanted to tell the public?'

The murder of a president rocks an idyllic community in a twisty thriller

NEW THRILLER

Paradise

From Tue 28 Jan, Disney+ (first three episodes from 28 Jan, then weekly)

If life is a lottery, then the residents of the aptly named Paradise have definitely hit the jackpot. But when a murder shakes the community to its core, is everything really as it seems in the picturesque and serene city?

This eight-part, high-stakes thriller begins with just another day in Paradise for Xavier (This Is Us star Sterling K. Brown), the head of security for President Cal Bradford (James Marsden). But after he kisses his children, Presley and James, goodbye and leaves for work, Xavier makes a gruesome discovery inside Cal's bedroom that changes his life forever.

He finds the president dead on the floor, and after the authorities descend upon the crime scene, Xavier is forced to take a polygraph test as news of the killing sends shock waves throughout the city, which is inhabited by the world's most affluent and powerful people.

But would dependable dad-of-two Xavier kill the president, whom he called a friend? Or is a murderer on the loose in Paradise? As the investigation continues, flashbacks reveal the complex friendship between the two men. 'Even though Cal is very charming and has a John F. Kennedy feel about him, he doesn't have many friends,' says Marsden, 51. 'He's not exactly a squeaky-clean Mr. Do Right, but he is a man of character.'

'It's not just a whodunnit; there's more to it than meets the eye. Cal is lonely and a bit broken, until Xavier comes into his life and they forge a friendship that's unexpected. They mean a lot to each other, but there are so many twists and turns as the show dives into their complex dynamic. There are some real heart-in-your-mouth moments and surprises along the way.'

Written by This Is Us creator Dan Fogelman, the series features Person of Interest star Sarah Shahi as therapist Gabriella Torabi, while Jon Beavers and Nicole Brydon Bloom play secret-service agents Billy and Jane.

REVELATIONS

The drama also reunites Marsden with his former Ally McBeal co-star Julianne Nicholson, who plays a prominent figure in Paradise, the enigmatic, power-crazed Samantha Redmond.

'There are certain places, moneyed places in particular or by the sea, that have a certain air and Paradise is one of them. You feel very lucky if you live there,' says Mare of Easttown star Nicholson, 53. 'It's a high-functioning community, but something feels not quite right and the president's death heightens it.'

'Samantha is a powerful woman, but she's suffering with grief, which dictates a lot of her choices,' she adds. 'She lulls you into thinking that everything is OK and then pulls the rug out from under you. But I have compassion for Samantha and I hope viewers will do, too – even though she's out of her mind.'

Escape to victory?

David Stirling makes a bid for freedom in a thrilling finale

LAST ONE DRAMA

SAS Rogue Heroes

Sunday, 9pm, BBC1

David Stirling has spent more than a year rotting away in an Italian prisoner-of-war camp, but he finally gets a chance to make a break for it in a gripping climax to the second season of SAS Rogue Heroes.

As this week's finale begins, the British troops being held at Forte di Gavi hear that the Italian government has fallen following the Allied invasion led by Stirling's comrades in the SAS.

Although the Italian guards at the prison abandon their posts, German troops are on their way to replace them and will kill any POWs they catch trying to flee.

TAKING ACTION

Realising they have less than half an hour to make their escape, many of the prisoners flee on foot, but after being stuck in solitary confinement, Stirling doesn't have the energy to run.

Deciding to hide out in the fort, he hopes to slip away after the Germans depart, but when it becomes clear they're not leaving, he's forced to consider making a desperate bid for freedom.

'We really see Stirling's problem-solving brain come to the fore, even though he's thirsty, malnourished and descending into

regiment

madness by this time,' says Connor Swindells, who plays him. 'I lost a lot of weight for this series. I wanted to show his physical condition and his hunger to get out of there.'

IN THE DARK

After portraying Stirling as he battled the Germans in the deserts of North Africa for the first season of the drama, playing the SAS founder was a very different experience for Swindells in the second series. While most of his co-stars were filming in sunny Croatia – which doubled as southern Italy – Swindells spent most of his time inside a dank military fortress in Chatham, Kent.

'Stirling has slowly been coming to terms with the fact he's missing out on all the action,' says Swindells. 'That's exactly how I felt, too, because I was missing out on all the fun. Everyone was shooting in very wonderful conditions and I was stuck in a cave!'

The case of a murdered cyclist strikes close to home for DI Mervin Wilson and the team

Wheels of justice

NEW DRAMA

Death in Paradise

Friday, 9pm, BBC1

DI Mervin Wilson (Don Gilet) didn't exactly endear himself to his new colleagues when he was seconded to Saint Marie's police force at Christmas. Unapologetically metropolitan in his approach to life and work, he found the pace of everything on the island agonisingly slow – and the rest of his team bristled at his constant complaints about it.

As a result, there's no great sadness on either side when Mervin packs his bags and prepares to return to London as the new series of Death in Paradise begins.

However, on his way to the airport he spots DS Naomi Thomas (Shantol Jackson) and Officer Darlene Curtis (Ginny Holder) at the scene of an accident that's left a cyclist dead. Mervin's curiosity gets the better of him, and when he notices something suspicious about the body, he decides to stick around for a few more days to investigate.

'At the start of the show, he's heading out of there – it's a done deal,' says former EastEnders star Gilet. 'But there is something quite profound that's keeping him in Saint Marie, and over time you'll find that out. In the first episode, someone close to the team dies, so it hits them in a different way – it's not just a job. You'll see how the team comes together when the case affects them on a personal level.'

Mervin's decision to extend his stay is greeted with dismay by his colleagues, who didn't enjoy working with him at Christmas. Darlene, in particular, is not a fan of his brusque manner, and runs out of patience very quickly.

'Darlene finds it quite difficult having Mervin coming in and telling them how to do things, and being a bit disrespectful about the culture,' says Holder. 'She's very forthright in her opinions of him, and tells him off a lot. But as the series goes on, there's an understanding, and she realises that actually he's a really good inspector.'

Despite their antagonism on-screen, things were much more

cordial off-camera for Gilet and Jackson, who enjoyed getting their teeth into the new double act formed by their characters – and occasionally struggled to stop their real-life friendship from spilling over into the show.

'I love to hate him as the character. Don makes it easy – he plays Mervin so well,' smiles Jackson. 'I had to remind myself, "My character actually despises this person – we're not supposed to be having fun!" Naomi and Mervin's relationship is a roller coaster, and we had a really good time.'

Gilet joined Death in Paradise following the departure of Ralf Little as DI Neville Parker at the end of Series 13. Although he's the fifth actor to play the show's lead inspector, he's aware that viewers might find his arrival to be a tough adjustment.

'But there are points when Mervin starts to thaw, and that might surprise people,' he says. 'I'd like to think that by the end, not only will Mervin's colleagues like and accept him, I hope the audience will accept him as well.'

'Don makes it easy – he plays Mervin so well'

Eighteen new candidates compete to win Lord Sugar's investment

NEW ENTERTAINMENT

The Apprentice

Thursday, 9pm, BBC1

Lord Alan Sugar gets straight down to business when The Apprentice returns to BBC1 with a new 12-part series this week. The latest batch of candidates – including a motivational speaker and a hair-transplant consultant – barely have time to catch their breath before the tycoon sends them to Innsbruck, Austria under the watchful eyes of his trusty sidekicks Baroness Karren Brady and Tim Campbell.

There, the 18 competitors vying for his mentorship and £250,000 investment are tasked with delivering glacier and forest tour packages in the Alps. But who will get a frosty reception in the boardroom back in London?

Here, Lord Sugar, 77, reveals more about the new series...

Have you made any changes to the format this year?

The trip to Austria really sets the tone. In the past, we've split the candidates into sexes to help viewers get to know them quickly. But this year we've decided to mix them up from the outset. It's interesting to see how they handle it because it's not what they expect.

Karren Brady and
Tim Campbell

What new tasks have you lined up?

We've lots of really good ones, from buying and selling potatoes to making a virtual pop star and creating a banking app for kids. There's also a corporate hospitality challenge in Turkey.

With this being the 19th series, are candidates more savvy?

They all say they love the show and they've followed it for years. If they have, then they should be able to pick up on what they should and shouldn't do. They need to do their homework on us, just as I have on them. And, to be fair, most of them have.

What makes you think twice about a contestant?

The only way they annoy me is if they continue to make the same mistakes. Just be smart – it's not rocket science.

What happens behind the scenes that might surprise fans?

The boardroom scenes are all natural. No one meddles once we are in that room. The producers are not telling me what to do.

Do you have anything exciting planned for next year's 20th series?

We are already working on ideas. It's got to be a special occasion. I want a really good set of candidates for the 20th.

One of TV's most popular actors, Idris Elba's early career included 1990s roles as a prison officer in ITV's The Governor and a vampire hunter in C4's Ultraviolet.

He made his name as drug kingpin Stringer Bell in US drama The Wire (2002-2004) and has also appeared in Luther as London cop DCI John Luther, family patriarch Walter in Sky comedy drama In the Long Run, and negotiator Sam Nelson in Hijack on Apple TV+.

HIS NEW APPEARANCE

In a BBC1 special, the actor explores the devastating effect of knife crime. He meets offenders, bereaved families, social workers and the police to understand youth violence, and discusses the problem with Prime Minister Sir Keir Starmer and King Charles III. 'So many people dismiss knife crime as a gang-related problem, but this couldn't be further from the truth,' says Elba. 'White, middle-class and rural areas are also affected, perpetrators are getting younger and fear is spreading.'

A League of Their Own

Thursday, 9pm, Sky Max
& Sky Showcase

This week's edition of A League of Their Own celebrates some of Britain's greatest-ever sports stars as tennis legend Sir Andy Murray and Olympic gold-medallist Keely Hodgkinson join host Romesh Ranganathan, team captains Jill Scott and Jamie Redknapp, and panellists Micah Richards and Alan Carr.

SWIM CHALLENGE

And it turns out to be a memorable episode for Richards, who tries to beat triple Olympic champion Tom Dean in a 100m freestyle race at the London Aquatics Centre.

As a non-swimmer, the former footballer was given an intensive course of lessons before the challenge. So how did he fare? 'Well, I didn't drown so that was a start,' laughs Richards, who had a 50m head-start on the Olympian.

As the teams take on other Olympic events, comedian Maisie Adam joins the gang for a velodrome cycling challenge set by husband-and-wife Sir Jason Kenny and Dame Laura Kenny, who have 12 Olympic golds between them.

BALL BOY

Ranganathan also joins in the fun when he tries to return a serve from Sir Andy Murray, who's twice won Olympic gold. Even though the Wimbledon champion reduced the speed of his serves to around 70mph, the rest of the panel were understandably dubious about his chances of hitting the ball back. 'I think Rom would struggle with Swingball,' teases Alan Carr.

Meanwhile, the final challenge sees Hodgkinson and Murray try their luck on an epic aerial challenge dubbed 'Mount Olympus'. To win, they must scale a huge structure and light an Olympic-style torch.

'The guests are brilliant this week,' says Richards. 'And Andy surprised me, too. People think he's dry, but he's got sharp banter and he came at me a few times!'

and it opened up all kinds of opportunities for me,' says the Perthshire-based chef. 'I was really honoured to be asked to be a judge. I can empathise with the chefs because I know exactly how nerve-racking it is as a former competitor myself.'

CREATIVE COOKS

This year's theme is 'Great Britons' with chefs from eight different UK regions competing to produce a dish for a sumptuous banquet that will be hosted at Blenheim Palace.

'Their dishes must honour a hero from their region – historical or modern,' explains McNee. 'The creativity from the chefs is really exciting and I learnt so much about local history, too.'

First up are four chefs – Jack

Bond, James Hill, Livia Alarcon and Eddie Shepherd – who are competing to represent the north-west of England. Among the local heroes they are celebrating are activist Anne Williams, who campaigned to get justice for the victims of the Hillsborough disaster and who is honoured with a brand-new take on a Scouse pie, and Jim Cameron, a mountain-rescue pioneer, who is celebrated with a black garlic and yeast roasted potato starter created to resemble rough terrain.

'The standard of competition is incredibly high,' says McNee. 'Deciding who would go through each week was tough – but we were all united with our choices.'

Saigon stories

Fifty years on, Vietnam veterans remember the war in a landmark series

Apple TV+ Vietnam: The War That Changed America

NEW Available: Friday 31 January
Genre: Documentary
Season: 1 Episodes: 6

In the spring of 1968, as students around the world protested against the Vietnam War, Bill Broyles was studying at Oxford University when he saw footage of the brutal and bloody Battle of Hue on television in a crowded common room.

For the 23-year-old Texan, it proved to be a pivotal moment in his life, and soon afterwards he enlisted in the US

Army, determined to serve his country in the controversial conflict.

'I grew up in a refinery town in Texas, with a bunch of working-class people. I realised those guys fighting in Vietnam were just like my high-school friends and I didn't want to abuse my privilege and have someone take my place,' explains Broyles in an exclusive interview with TV&Satellite Week.

'When I got out there I found myself with a bunch of 18, 19 and 20-year-olds, many of whom had not graduated from high school. But I learned more from them than I did in Oxford. Vietnam was my real classroom.'

This week, Broyles – who went on to become a successful movie screenwriter, penning 2001's Cast Away and earning an Oscar nomination for his work on 1995's Apollo 13

– features in Apple TV+'s ambitious six-part documentary series Vietnam: The War That Changed America.

PERSPECTIVES

Produced to mark the 50th anniversary of the fall of Saigon, it features first-hand testimonies and archive footage to tell the extraordinary stories of those who lived through the war – soldiers and civilians from both sides of the conflict.

'President Nixon was already winding down the war when I got out there in 1969,' explains Broyles. 'I was a platoon commander and the war didn't make any sense to the men I was in charge of – and it didn't make any sense to me. These guys were as brave as any of the Marines in World War Two, but they weren't going to give their lives for nothing. My real mission out there was to keep us all alive.'

more disillusioned by the war, there were cases of 'fragging' – the deliberate killing of gung-ho US officers who were risking their men's lives in dangerous missions. And Broyles was warned by a radio operator named Jeff Hiers that his life could be at risk.

After taking Hiers' advice, he scaled back his platoon's operations, possibly saving his own life in the process. The pair went on to become great friends and share a touching reunion in the documentary series.

'Jeff drove me insane when I first got to Vietnam; he was completely insubordinate,' laughs Broyles. 'But I love that guy and he helped keep me alive. Seeing him again after all these years was a wonderful moment.'

prime You're Cordially Invited

NEW Available: Thursday 30 January
Genre: Romantic comedy

Mayhem and mishaps ensue when two weddings are double-booked into the same venue on an idyllic island resort off the coast of Georgia in new Prime Video romcom You're Cordially Invited.

At the centre of the chaos are the rival family members who have planned the big days – high-powered exec Margot (Reese Witherspoon), who is organising her younger sister Neve's wedding, and Jim (Will Ferrell), the doting father of the other bride, Jenni.

RIVALRY

As each tries to ensure their own bridal party takes precedence, their feud escalates into an epic showdown, featuring cake catastrophes, sneaky sabotage and even a tussle between Jim and a deadly alligator!

'It's about a double-booked destination wedding and all the insanity that ensues,' says writer and director Nicholas Stoller, whose credits include movie hits Forgetting Sarah Marshall (2008) and Get Him to the Greek (2010).

'But for me, the story is really about the relationship between parents and siblings. To make good comedy, you have to have conflict and characters that fundamentally disagree with one another, or have cross purposes. But the emotional core is there, too.'

Meredith Hagner and Geraldine Viswanathan play rival brides Neve and Jenni, while the cast includes Keyla Monterroso Mejia as the resort's clueless wedding planner Heather, plus a cameo from former American-football star Peyton Manning. The film is the latest project from Witherspoon's own production company, Hello Sunshine, which has previously brought us TV shows Big Little Lies and Daisy Jones & The Six.

'The company was born out of a frustration with not seeing the parts that I wanted and thinking there were not enough female voices in the entertainment industry,' explains Witherspoon. 'We need to understand how incredible and strong and dynamic women are in every facet, from every walk of life.'

Apple TV+ Mythic Quest

Genre: Comedy Season: 4 Eps: 10
(two episodes from Wed 29 Jan, then released weekly)

Can a once in-demand video game recover from a dip in popularity? The Mythic Quest team are about to find out as they reunite for a fourth season of the Apple TV+ workplace comedy.

After the business branched off into two rival gaming companies last season, egotistical creative director Ian Grimm (co-creator Rob McElhenney), hapless exec producer David Brittlesbee (David Hornsby), lead engineer Poppy Li (Charlotte Nicdao) and spirited games tester Dana Bryant (Imani Hakim) are all back together again under the fluorescent office lights of Mythic Quest HQ.

A united team is crucial after the proposed Mythic Quest movie fell through and gamers started leaving. As Ian and co tackle the daunting task of making the game a hit again, they're faced with new challenges of the changing landscape of the video-game industry – not least the rise of user-generated content and AI chatbots.

Meanwhile, Poppy gets a new boyfriend, David lands in court, and Ian becomes wildly jealous of Dana's recent success...

In good news for fans, a spin-off anthology series, Side Quest, is set to air on Apple TV+ in March, and will explore the impact of the game on employees and players.

'What I try to do with any of my shows is to take a different look at what's traditionally been done,' says McElhenney. 'I try to tell a story through a different lens.'

CIA lawyer Owen Hendricks goes undercover in South Korea

Owen Hendricks
(Noah Centineo)

NETFLIX The Recruit

NEW Available: Thursday 30 January
Genre: Drama Season: 2 Eps: 6

What started out as a mundane job quickly turned into high-stakes espionage for rookie CIA lawyer Owen Hendricks, who's back this week for a covert operation in South Korea.

The spy drama's six-part second run picks up straight after Season 1's finale, with Owen (Noah Centineo) kidnapped by Nichka, aka Karolina (Maddie Hasson), the daughter of rogue Russian asset Max Meladze (Laura Haddock) whom he thought was dead.

But after a last-minute rescue operation and orders to stay put in his office, the stakes continue to rise for the daredevil lawyer when a cryptic note from Korea lands on his desk. Owen begs his boss, Walter Nyland (Vondie Curtis-Hall), to send him to Seoul, where he lived as a child when his father was stationed there. But will he create even more mess for the agency?

'Owen's headspace is in complete chaos after witnessing Max, the former CIA asset who he almost died multiple times trying to protect, get shot by her daughter,' says Centineo, 28. 'But while Korea carries a heavy weight for him, it also brings back sweet memories from his childhood. It's fertile ground for the vicious and life-threatening fun Owen loves to find himself in the middle of.'

INTERNAL THREAT

Inspired by the experiences of former CIA lawyer and executive producer Adam Ciralsky, the show introduces new characters for Season 2, including intelligence officer Grace (Young-Ah Kim), senior US diplomat Tom Wallace (Felix Solis) and businessman Oliver Bonner-Jones (James Purefoy).

But when Owen joins forces with South Korean National Intelligence Service agent Jang Kyun (Past Lives' Teo Yoo), he begins to suspect that the most dangerous threat could be within the CIA itself.

'What happens in The Recruit is not a massive exaggeration by any means,' says Centineo. 'It's so crazy to think that this is what it's like.'

How the Auschwitz orchestra saved the life of a talented cellist

NEW FACTUAL

The Last Musician of Auschwitz

Monday, 9pm, BBC2

Marking the 80th anniversary of the liberation of Auschwitz, feature-length documentary The Last Musician of Auschwitz recounts the remarkable story of Anita Lasker-Wallfisch, the only surviving member of the Nazi death camp's Women's Orchestra.

In the film, Lasker-Wallfisch recounts being stripped naked on arrival. 'It was done by prisoners, and one of them asked: "What did you do before the war?"' recalls the 99-year-old. 'I said I used to play the cello, and she told me there was an orchestra in Auschwitz and they needed a cellist. And she went to find the conductor.'

This stroke of good fortune meant that, for the time being, the Nazis had a reason to keep her alive.

'We had to play marches every morning and evening at the gate, so prisoners going to nearby factories could march in step,' reveals Lasker-Wallfisch, who moved to England after the war. 'We also gave concerts most Sundays, and had to be ready to play for any SS personnel.'

Her cellist son Raphael Wallfisch also appears in the documentary, performing music at Auschwitz that his mother would have played there. He reveals that one request for an impromptu performance came from the infamous Dr Josef Mengele, who carried out deadly experiments on prisoners.

IRONIC

'Mengele requested a Schumann piece that depicts idyllic scenes of childhood,' says Wallfisch. 'It's a great irony, considering what he was busy doing.'

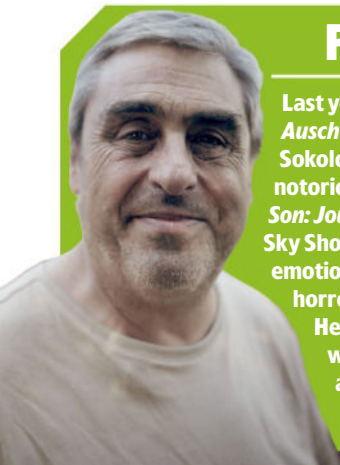

He recalls that, growing up in England, he was shielded from learning about his mother's wartime experiences. 'Understandably, my mother wanted me and my sister Maya to grow up as normal as possible. So questions like: "What is that number on your arm?" were brushed aside.'

Wallfisch's haunting performances at the camp highlight the bizarre incongruity of such beautiful classical music being played against a backdrop of mechanised mass murder.

'For my mum, playing certainly helped keep her mind off what was happening,' explains Wallfisch, who believes the film also offers a message of hope.

'More things join us as human beings than divide us,' he says. 'Music is definitely one of them, and it speaks to everybody.'

LEADERS of the pack

Cameras go behind the scenes with the stars of rugby's Six Nations

NEW FACTUAL

Six Nations: Full Contact

From Wednesday 29 January, Netflix

England fly-half Marcus Smith comes under the spotlight in the second outing of Netflix's glossy sports series Six Nations: Full Contact, which goes behind the scenes of last year's rugby Six Nations Championship, in which Smith scored an incredible winning drop goal against eventual title winners Ireland.

'Rugby is getting massive, the sport is reaching a different audience and it's just amazing to be a part of,' says Smith, 25.

'We compete as hard as we can in training because we're desperate to get selected,' says the Harlequins fly-half. 'The Six Nations is very intense and that's how you want to practice because we know the games are going to be like that.'

'Unfortunately in the hardest, most intense training session of the week, I felt a massive pop in my right calf. I was like, "This is not good news." The last thing I wanted to do was let the boys down.'

As well as all the action from the games, the fly-on-the-wall docuseries also takes a closer look at the off-field lives of the top players. Smith is seen shopping for a flash new car, while later in the series, cameras catch up with Scotland winger Duhan van der Merwe and his wife Nika, Wales' lock Dafydd Jenkins, and England full back Freddie Steward as he fights for his place in the team.

Meanwhile, England's Jamie George shares what it was like to bravely lead out his team against Scotland for the Calcutta Cup clash just days after losing his mum, Jane, to cancer.

'You don't know how to feel, you don't know how to think,' says George, 34. 'My mum was the biggest rugby fan and she loved watching me play, and when all's said and done, I've got the opportunity to make some people very proud, whether they're in the stands, whether they're watching at home or whether they're not with us any more.'

'I wanted her to be there in that moment and I just had a quiet word: "Come on mum, talk to me."

FURIOSA

A Mad Max Saga

Anya Taylor-Joy takes on a villainous Chris Hemsworth in this blistering prequel

SCI-FI ACTION

Friday, 11.40am & 8pm,
Sky Premiere

If George Miller's Mad Max: Fury Road was the ultimate stripped-down road movie, his latest takes a very different path. Furiosa is a sprawling epic about the origins of that character, first encountered in Fury Road and played by Charlize Theron, here brought to life by Anya Taylor-Joy.

From her capture as a child (first played early by Alya Browne) by bombastic, sadistic Dementus (Chris Hemsworth) after he tortures and murders her mother, before being taken under the wing by the equally cruel Immortan Joe (Lachy Hulme), a vengeful Furiosa (Taylor-Joy) won't be deterred until she has hunted down the man who killed her parent. But with a film kicking 150 minutes, there are more battles and hardships to endure before that...

The post-apocalypse desert world Miller has created for his Mad Max franchise is bleak and ferocious, but Taylor-Joy is more than a match for it: tough, cunning and determined. She's also in the middle of most of those outlandish, jaw-dropping action set-pieces that have become a trademark of the series.

Miller attempts something more than just gargantuan, flaming stunts, though. This is the most fully realised of the Mad Max films – and it doesn't even include Max himself. It's a spectacular opus with Taylor-Joy's beating heart at the centre of it all and with her at the wheel, expect carnage... 2023, 15, 148MIN

Star-turned-director Eva Longoria salutes her Mexican American heritage with this comic biopic of Richard Montañez (Jesse Garcia), a janitor in a California snack-food factory who rose to the boardroom – and who claimed to have invented the wildly successful spicy flavouring of the title. Montañez's boast has been challenged but that doesn't spoil Longoria's snappy, tongue-in-cheek movie. Indeed, the film playfully acknowledges its protagonist's penchant for exaggerating the truth, with Garcia's Montañez freezing the action every so often to admit things didn't actually happen like that. Colourful supporting performances from Annie Gonzalez (as his wife), Dennis Haysbert (his mentor) and Tony Shalhoub (his boss) simply add to the fun. 2022, 12, 99MIN

CRIME THRILLER

The Last Stop in Yuma County

Sunday, 10.25am & 10.15pm, Sky Premiere

A glorious piece of twisty storytelling, this modern western noir mostly takes place in a dusty, desolate diner where a few customers wait for a fuel truck so they can be on their way. Trouble is, two of those patrons (Richard Brake and Nicholas Logan) are cruel criminals with a stash of stolen loot in the trunk of their car – delivering death threats to waitress Jocelin Donahue and knife salesman Jim Cummings to keep their identities secret and their mouths shut... What starts as a fairly conventional thriller ends up going way off the rails in a wildly entertaining manner, with first-time writer-director Francis Galluppi keeping the tension and craziness held together with a sure touch. There's a Coen Brothers element to this (especially the likes of Blood Simple and Fargo), but Galluppi proves to be his own man and plays with the audience like an old pro. 2023, 15, 90MIN

Can Ireland become the first team to win three Six Nations titles in a row? They will be without coach Andy Farrell, who is preparing to lead the Lions on their tour to Australia, but interim coach Simon Easterby has a strong squad at his disposal, including Leinster stars Ciarán Frawley and Caelan Doris. 'This is the most open competition in a long time,' says ex-Scotland international Johnnie Beattie. 'Four sides could lift the trophy, but Ireland have the form and consistency to make history.'

FRANCE

Les Bleus enjoyed a clean sweep in the November Tests, and coach Fabien Galthié's squad – including superstar Antoine Dupont and Pierre-Louis Barassi, who scored tries in all three Autumn matches – will be confident of winning a first title since their 2022 Grand Slam. 'France look the strongest side this year,' says former England fly-half Jonny Wilkinson. 'It's very hard to look beyond Dupont as the standout star, always assuming he stays fit. He has such a big impact upon his team.'

ENGLAND

Steve Borthwick's team, which finished third last year, has a new captain in Saracens skipper Maro Itoje. But after winning just five of their 12 matches in 2024, England will need to bounce back with a squad that includes in-form No.8 Tom Willis. 'The pressure is on Borthwick. A tough schedule awaits them with Ireland up first away, followed by France at home,' says former England star Maggie Alphonsi. 'But there is young talent coming through in Asher Opoku-Fordjour and Chandler Cunningham-South.'

SCOTLAND

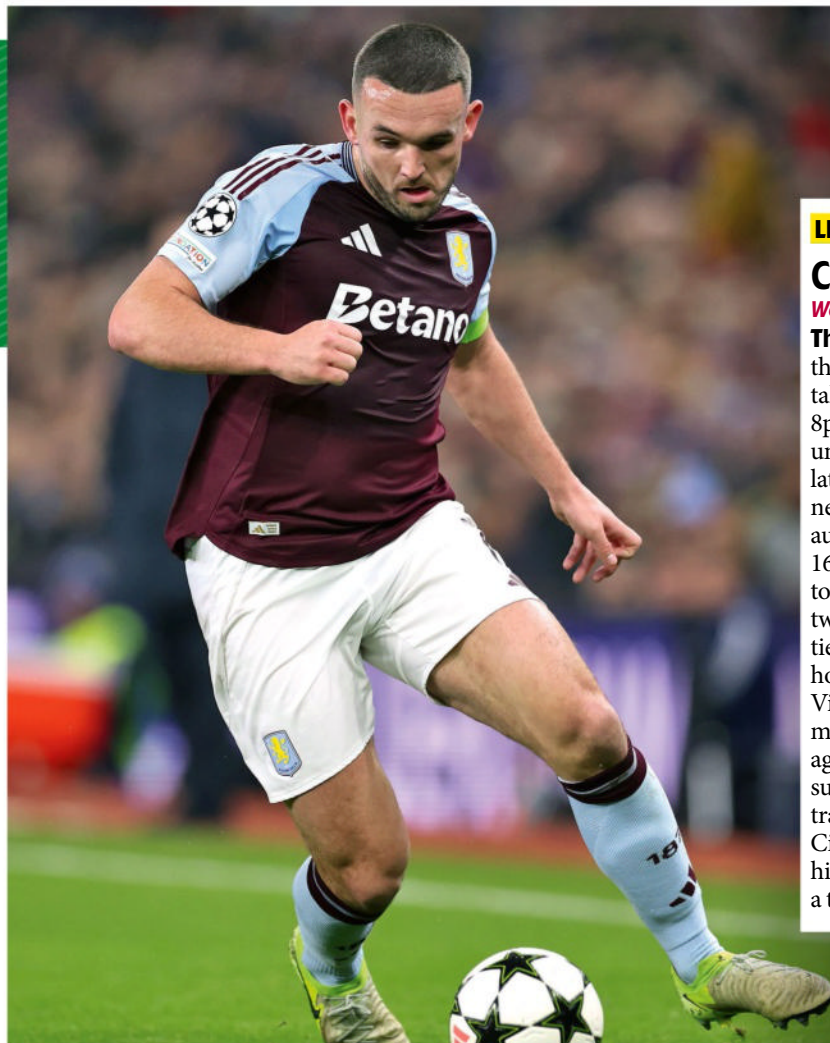

Coach Gregor Townsend will be looking to make the most of back-to-back opening games. Finn Russell and Blair Kinghorn come into the championship in good form, while the squad includes a first call-up for Saracens' New Zealand-born stand-off Fergus Burke, who is eligible through his Glasgow grandfather. 'Scotland has the best squad they've ever assembled and the most attractive way of playing,' says Beattie. 'They can knock over anyone on their day.'

WALES

Coach Warren Gatland's job is on the line after overseeing 12 successive defeats. They come into the tournament after losses to Fiji, Australia and South Africa in November, but lock and ex-captain Dafydd Jenkins joins captain Jac Morgan in the squad after missing the Autumn Tests with injury. 'Wales have a point to prove, and with this being a Lions year, expect fireworks as the players look to impress Andy Farrell,' says presenter Jill Douglas.

ITALY

This year marks the 25th anniversary of Italy joining the Six Nations. The Azzurri have ended up with the wooden spoon on 18 occasions – including nine times in the last 11 seasons – but secured their best-ever finish in 2024, defeating Wales and Scotland, drawing with France, and running England close in Rome, with Tommaso Menoncello named player of the tournament. 'Under coach Gonzalo Quesada, Italy have found their voice and confidence,' says Alphonsi. 'I'm looking forward to seeing the centre partnership of Menoncello and Juan Ignacio Brex. Both were sensational last year.'

Champions League

Wednesday, kick-offs 8pm, TNT Sports

The league phase draws to a close this week, with all 18 fixtures taking place on Wednesday at 8pm to ensure no team gains an unfair advantage by kicking off later and knowing the result they need. The top eight sides will automatically qualify for the last 16, while clubs ranked from ninth to 24th must duke it out in a two-leg play-off. The pick of the ties sees Unai Emery's Aston Villa host Brendan Rodgers' Celtic, as Villa's Scottish international midfielder John McGinn plays against the club he grew up supporting. Elsewhere, Arsenal travel to Girona, Manchester City entertain Club Brugge, and high-flying Liverpool make a trip to PSV Eindhoven.

KIDS WATCHLIST

Great shows for young viewers (from tots to teens) on linear TV and streaming

Disney+

Your Friendly Neighborhood Spider-Man

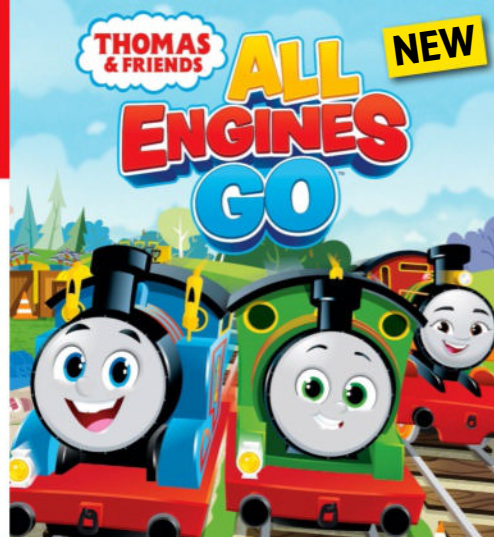

Available from Wednesday, Disney+

This new animated adventure series takes a fresh look at the origin story of Peter Parker and his early days as Spider-Man after he's bitten by a spider.

Those who are familiar with the Marvel Cinematic Universe (MCU) will be interested to know that the series is set in an alternate timeline from the main films starring Tom Holland; here, Norman Osborn becomes Peter's mentor, rather than Tony Stark.

Fun fact: The classic-style animation pays homage to the art style of early The Amazing Spider-Man comics.

NEW

Thomas & Friends: All Engines Go!

Weekdays, 6.50am, Milkshake! on Five

All aboard for brand new adventures with Thomas and the Sodor crew! The little blue Number 1 engine and his friends, including Percy and Nia, return with fun stories including a quest to find Farmer McColl's sheep, Yong Bao and Carly having some trouble with their apple delivery to the Harvest Festival, and Diesel overcoming his fear of a Swamp Monster.

Coming soon

Siobhan Finneran and Katherine Kelly head up the cast

Protection

Siobhan Finneran stars in a thriller about a troubled witness-protection officer

FIRST LOOK

A detective wades through dangerous secrets and lies in ITV1's upcoming crime-thriller series Protection.

The six-part drama is based on the first-hand experiences of a long-serving witness-protection officer and sees Siobhan Finneran as DI Liz Nyles, who is thrown into turmoil after a shocking event occurs while she is trying to protect informant Jimmy McLennan (Kris Hitchen) and his family as he prepares to testify against gangster Edward Crowther (Alec Newman).

Suspicions are raised that Liz's unit may be corrupt, but, when she illicitly delves further into the criminal underworld to expose the truth about who may have leaked information, Liz must choose between her job, her married lover DS Paul Brandice (Barry Ward), and her family.

CORRUPTION

Katherine Kelly co-stars as DCI Hannah Wheatley, who heads up an investigation following the incident, while Nadine Marshall is DCI Amanda Kelman, who works in Professional Standards and is also looking into the alleged corruption.

'Protection is a suspenseful conspiracy thriller, but it also explores complex moral questions about how far we should go to serve the greater good,' says writer Kris Mrksa. 'The murky world of witness protection, where hardened criminals are often sheltered, in the hope that they will help bring down other criminals, provides the perfect context for examining these thorny issues.'

WHAT'S NEXT FOR...

Matthew Lewis

In Murder Before Evensong, Channel 5's six-part adaptation of the first of Reverend Richard Coles' whodunnit novels, the actor will play Canon Daniel Clement, who turns crime-solver when a killer strikes.

Tom Hanks

The Oscar-winner will narrate BBC1's 10-part natural-history series The Americas, which showcases the wildlife across Canada, the United States, Mexico, the Caribbean and South America.

Coming Back

Still Waters, a sequel to C4's Welsh thriller The Light in the Hall, sees Sian Reese-Williams return as Caryl, now a trainee journalist, who investigates a man's death in an explosion. Robert Glenister and Mark Lewis Jones co-star.

A second six-part run of ITV1's Gary Barlow's Wine Tour will follow the singer as he travels across Australia with his celebrity pals, meeting wine producers and chefs along the way and sampling local cuisine.

INDIVIDUALLY
NUMBERED

Whether casting a sultry gaze or singing one of his countless hits, Elvis Presley™ stole the hearts of millions around the world. Now, to celebrate the 90th anniversary of his birth you can honour and show your admiration of the musical genius that was Elvis Presley with the officially licensed Elvis™ 'The Legend Lives On' Individually Numbered Art Chronograph Watch – exclusive to The Bradford Exchange.

Rose gold-plating, genuine leather, Elvis imagery and individual numbering Expertly handcrafted, this precision timepiece showcases a rich rose gold-plated casing and crown, in addition to a brown genuine leather strap. Further rose gold-plated accents adorn the luminous hands, the second hand, and the sleek numeral markers. Three precision chronograph dials with rose gold-plated surround and silvery dials depict: 'ELVIS' and '90'. That's not all! The main dial is adorned with a montage of three images; a smouldering portrait, an Army uniform image and a black leather jacket image. The casing reverse is engraved with Elvis' silhouette, musical notes, 'THE KING OF ROCK 'N' ROLL', '90TH ANNIVERSARY', the star's replica signature and an individual edition number.

Individually numbered and not available on the high street – order now!
